INNER ASTRONOMY ALBUM OUT NOW

LA-based performer-composer Molly Pease released her new album “Inner Astronomy” via 4Tay Records.

Pease created the multi-media project using poetry written by her father, the late Randall Pease. The composer set a series of her father's poetry to voices and strings, creating a cantata of pieces that were recorded at First Congregational Church of Los Angeles.

The pieces reflect the poet's search for strength and meaning through spare and metaphorical language as he battled depression, addiction and early-onset dementia. The composer used experimental vocal and string techniques throughout the cantata, reflecting her father's struggle and ultimate spiritual renewal.

A book of the poetry with the poet's own crayon drawings will be released in January.

The album is available on all music streaming platforms, and the score was published through See-a-Dot Music Publishing. A music video for the album's opening track “Recovery Family” was released via YouTube.

Performers are Molly Pease, Kathryn Shuman, Sharon Chohi Kim and Lauren Davis, vocals; Rachel Iba and Nigel Deane, violin; Patrick Benkhe, viola; Tal Katz, cello and Miller Wrenn, bass.
